Comments: I object to this in the strongest possible terms.

Fracking - and any infrastructure which facilitates it should be banned outright on climate change grounds alone.

There are also major threats to multiple sectors of the economy from fracking - and the infrastructure that supports it. (Please consider closely the attached report 'Compendium of Scientific, Medical, and Media Findings Demonstrating Risks and Harms of Fracking (Unconventional Gas and Oil Extraction) - 5th ed, 2018' when making your decision.

Australia should not be looking to frack the land that on which our aquifer lays underneath. This aquifer is the lifeblood of the country's animal and plant life, as well multiple industries vital to our country.

Changing the current laws to assist a foreign company that engages in tax avoidance to set up a monopoly should NOT be considered in any way, shape or form. The over-all economic benefit to the people of Australia MUST be an important consideration.

Please do your job well and consider the incredibly high environmental costs, dangers to agriculture, and minimal economic benefit to Australia and reject this proposal.

Sincerely,
