Comments: New technologies do have consequences, some evident and some that only emerge after time. Vaccinations have such effects, so too, 5G and the dangers and risks are minimised by those who would profit financially. The propaganda, mis-information, dis-information are aimed at pushing the new technology, while health advocates, go ignored, denied, or are avoided. I oppose 5G unless and until the precautionary principle is understood and practiced, in full - the new technology and its advocates should proceed only well after proof of no adverse effects are noted - perhaps a ten year ban until proof is definite.
