Comments: Dear sir, madam. I wish to strongly disagree with allowing electricity networks/providers/distributors to charge owners of solar systems in the event the grid is deemed not to need that renewable power. Who makes that decision? This will only benefit the electricity companies and disadvantage those of us doing the right thing. In reality, we should be paid fairly, whether it is deemed to be needed or not. At a bare minimum, we should receive the same price per kW exported as we import. This would be fair. Thank you.
